Lansing trying to stop State Lawsuit against BCBS

Rob South, WKAR

The City of Lansing is taking action to stop a lawsuit brought by Michigan Attorney General Mike Cox against Blue-Cross Blue-Shield of Michigan.

The AG is suing the insurance company over its acquisition of a Wisconsin-based insurer.

Lansing City Attorney Brigham Smith says the lawsuit threatens the redevelopment of the Ottawa Street Power Station.

The iconic downtown building is being renovated by the Accident Fund Insurance Company of America, a subsidiary of Blue Cross.
